Land Grants.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Representative Lewis was instructed by the house committee on public lands to-day to report favorably a joint resolution which prohibits the secretary of the interior from taking any further steps to confirm, certify, or patent any land granted any corporation, state or person by congress in any case where reports favoring forfeiture of such land grants have been made in either branch of this congress, until after final action shall be taken upon such bills or until the supreme court of the United States in a proper case shall decide upon the validity of such grant. The resolution further provides that the secretary be prohibited from certifying or patenting to any corporation any land grant except where such corporation has complied strictly with all the conditions of the granting act, and that in all cases of doubt in construing these conditions the benefit of the doubt be given the government.

Reward for Gallant Action.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The sub-committee of the house committee on naval affairs to-day reported to the full committee a bill providing an appropriation of $400,000 for the relief of officers and crews of the United States sloop-of-war Cumberland and the United States steamer Monitor, engaged in action with the Confederate steamer Merrimac in Hampton roads March 8 and 9, 1862. The report accompanying the bill says: "The claim to prize-money must be rejected, but while this is true, evidence presented the committee abundantly proves most conspicuous gallantry and devoted patriotism, as well as extraordinary services rendered by the officers and crews of these ships, which, in the opinion of your committee, entitle them to generous and grateful recognition by the country.

New Mexico's Legislature.

WASHINGTON, May 20. The house committee on judiciary ordered favorable report on Delegate Manzanares' joint resolution providing that the operation of all laws, acts and joint resolutions passed at the twenty sixth session of the legislature of New Mexico, which began February 18th this year, be suspended pending investigation now being made by the senate committee on territories. The committee is investigating charges that certain persons were illegally admitted to the legislature.

Veterans Preferred.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The house committee on military affairs instructed Representative Slocum to report favorably his bill providing that honorably discharged soldiers or sailors be preferred for appointment to civil offices when found to possess business capacity necessary to the proper discharge of the duties of such offices.

New York Failures.

WASHINGTON, May 20. The finance committee of the senate postponed for one week consideration of the resolution for investigation of the cause of failure of New York banks. It is thought a congressional investigation will not be ordered.

XLVIII Congress.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 20. The speaker announced the appointment of Ellis, Holman, and Ryan conferees on the Indian appropriation bill.

Senate amendments to the Dingley shipping bill were non-concurred in.

The house proceeded to consideration of the Indiana contested election case of English vs. Peelle.

A majority resolution was presented declaring William E. English duly elected member of the Forty-eighth congress.

Converse spoke in support of the claim of the contestant, and Hart presented the grounds on which the contested (Peelle) bases his claim.

Lowry advocated the claims of the contestant.

Pettibone spoke in support of the claims of the sitting member.

Pending further debate the house adjourned.

SENATE.

The chair laid before the senate a resolution offered yesterday relating to the New Orleans, Baton Rouge & Vicksburg Railroad company. Referred to the committee on public lands.

Slater offered a resolution which lies over one day under the rules, requesting the president to inform the senate by what authority a commissioner has been appointed from time to time to examine and report on sections of the Northern Pacific railroad which were constructed and completed subsequent to the time within which by law the road was required to be completed.

A bill passed extending to August, 1886, the time to commence laying the cable authorized by act of August 8, 1882.

The agricultural appropriation bill was taken up and proceeded with by sections. One of the amendments added to the bill by the senate committee appropriates $20,000 for continuing the location and sinking of artesian wells on the plains with a view to reclaiming arid and waste public lands.

To this provision Beck objected.

Hale moved that the appropriation be limited to two wells.

Agreed to—yeas 28, nays 22.

Another addition made to the bill by the senate committee was $15,000 for the encouragement of silk culture.

George moved to amend by making the amount $30,000.

The amendment was defeated; 22 yeas, 29 nays, and the amount allowed to stand at $15,000.

At the close of debate the bill passed without division.

Adjourned.

Revolution in Mexico.

GALVESTON, May 20.—A Galveston News Matamoras, Mexico, special via Brownsville says: Reports reach Matamoras to-day that a serious revolt broke out yesterday between the people and government troops and officials at Linares, about two hundred miles from Matamoras. No particulars could be learned. Telegrams have been sent asking particulars. Fears are entertained by both citizens and officers that a revolution has started which will spread over the entire republic. Quite a number of prominent parties here seem not to be surprised at the reported revolt. It is not unwelcome news to many. The government as now administered is so corrupt that the people are anxious for a change, believing that no government could be worse than the present. Some are found who seem to be rather anxious for a revolution, believing that it would result in annexation. That the political streams of Mexico are troubled there is no longer doubt.

NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—A Times-Democrat Matamoras special says: Reports are received of a serious revolt of the people against the government at Linares, state of Nuevo Leon.

Debate on the Franchise Bill.

LONDON, May 20.—The extension of the franchise bill was considered by the commons to-day in committee of the whole. Randolph Churchill strongly disagreed with the amendment of Broderick, conservative, to exclude Ireland from the operation of the bill. This announcement was greeted with cheers by the liberals. Lord Randolph said although he objected to the bill strongly on account of some of its provisions he thought the position taken by the government statesmanlike. He had no fear of the result of enfranchising Irish agricultural labor and expressed the hope that conservatives would not alienate the good opinion of the Irish by supporting Broderick's amendment.

Lord George Hamilton asked Churchill what he was really driving at. If, he said, this was the sentiment of democratic toryism of the future then he declined to follow under such leadership. He contended that the bill was introduced to suit the exigencies of the liberals. Its application to Ireland would result in reopening the flood-gates of agitation. Broderick's amendment was rejected, 383 to 127. Churchill, Gorst and other conservatives and all the Parnellites voted with the government. Northcote and many of his conservative followers quitted the house before division was taken. Lord George Hamilton's attack on Churchill caused considerable excitement in the house. The matter is the subject of general conversation and gives rise to the report that Churchill is at variance with conservative leaders.

France's Purpose in Africa.

LONDON, May 20.—The Times, in confirming the report that France has agreed not to interfere with the African International association on the Congo in consideration of the promise of the association, in case it wishes to withdraw, to cede its possessions to France, says: It would be difficult to imagine a more glaring contrast than between the negotiations of the African International association with America and of the same association with France. Pledges of the commercial freedom of all nations are entirely dropped, leaving France to enter the association unpledged. Free trade may be replaced any moment by a French protective tariff. America has been led into a false position. The subject calls for serious attention of the foreign office.

Hanged by Masked Men.

MARSHALL, Mo., May 20.—News reached here of the hanging of Phillip Schneider, mate of the steamer Montana, by seven masked men. The safe of this boat was robbed in St. Louis a short time ago and the supposition is that these men thinking the mate in some way connected with the affair endeavored by this means to extort a confession from him. They failed and left him for dead, but by some means he succeeded in extricating himself and reached Waverly, where he took a train for St. Louis this morning.

Lynch Law.

CHEYENNE, W. T., May 20.—Two men arrived here to-night from Sabelle county, 85 miles north of here, with the body of George Metcalf in their possession. Metcalf while at dinner got into a dispute with Wm. Maloney when the latter shot him dead. Maloney was arrested and on his way here was captured by a mob who lynched him.

Texas Floods.

GALVESTON, May 20. A News Dallas special says: Passengers arriving to-night state that all streams east and north of Texas are very high. The country is flooded. Trinity river is out of its banks. At some places it is a mile wide. Rain is still falling in torrents; no prospect of ceasing. The crop outlook is growing dismal.

Flood and Washout.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Reports from The Needles, California, state that the Colorado river is rising rapidly. The Atlantic & Pacific railroad bridge over the river at that point is partly washed out. The Southern Pacific Co. have a large force at work helping repair it. Meantime passengers transferred.

Senator Jonas' Successor.

BATON ROUGE, May 20.—The legislature elected James B. Eustis United States senator to succeed Jonas. A committee investigating election frauds in St. Martin and Iberia parishes recommends the impeachment of Thos. Pontalion, republican, judge of the 21st district.

THE ARTHUR BOOM.

New York Business Men Enter the Political Canvass.

Advocating the Nomination of President Arthur.

A Committee of One Hundred to Go to Chicago.

A Call for Arthur.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A great mass meeting of citizens and business men, called to express approval of the administration of President Arthur and urge his renomination for the second term, was held to-night at Cooper Union. A more orderly and intelligent assembly than that which crowded the hall was never before seen in this city. At 7:30 every seat in the building was occupied, and half an hour later Cornelius N. Bliss, of Bliss, Fabian & Co., called the meeting to order. Not another person could find standing room. Throngs still continued to pour in the doorways, until finally at ten minutes past eight the commandant of police gave orders to close the doors. Among the audience were large numbers of ladies. Seats were provided upon the platform for about sixty people. Among the prominent persons who occupied them were C. N. Bliss, Frederick L. Winston, Henry Ward Beecher, Benjamin H. Bristow, Edward Pierrepont, Assistant United States Treasurer J. C. Acton, Surrogate D. G. Rollins, Dr. D. Agnew, Legrand B. Cannon, Jesse Seligman, Salem H. Wales, Sam Sloan, president D. L. & W., and Parke Godwin.

Cornelius N. Bliss called the meeting to order, and in a brief speech stated the object for which it was called. He said it was an unusual thing for business men to have a voice on choosing candidates for the presidency, as this was the work of those who are supposed to be better versed in public affairs. Political papers had endeavored to depreciate the efforts of business men in the present instance and had insinuated, at the present time especially, that it would be better for business men to attend their own business and look after their stocks and bonds and merchandise instead of meddling with politics. They would take the liberty, however, in spite of these unfair comments, to express their views of the matter and urge the renomination of a man who, although he came into office under such trying circumstances, had proved himself so worthy of the great charge intrusted to him by the people, and whose administration had met with such success. [Applause.] President Arthur was certain to receive the vote of New York state, which could not be said of another candidate.

Frederick S. Winston, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, was introduced as chairman of the meeting. He asserted that men of all classes were centering upon President Arthur, and that this was not a class meeting, but a meeting of all citizens. A long line of vice-presidents, including the names of most prominent business men, was read and resolutions in the heartiest spirit of the meeting adopted. Parke Godwin, editor of the Commercial Advertiser, made a short address and then Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was presented. Mr. Beecher was enthusiastically welcomed. He said, "A most excellent evening paper in Brooklyn, whose editor I esteem very highly because he esteems me very highly, [laughter] not long ago in a playful assault said that Mr. Beecher used to be very much opposed to the president but that he had come around and became a great friend of his and that that was just like Beecher. [Laughter.] I am here to verify every word of that. I was not prejudiced in Mr. Arthur's favor. I was, on the contrary, displeased with him and I regarded the success of his administration as being very uncertain; but I have been won from those prejudices by the steady progress of his wise and prudent administration [Applause.] I am here not as clergyman but as a business man. This an assemblage of business men, not capitalists or monopolists or bloated bondholders. The business part of the community represents in many respects the best interests of our whole country, and business men more than any other require a stable government. We have met simply to suggest to the convention at Chicago what is the will of the republicans of New York. President Arthur has proven himself under the most trying circumstances one of the most able and promising officials the nation has ever had. I think investigation will show President Arthur was first to institute civil service reform. He began it when in the custom house and still continues. As an observer I have the advantage that I have no party interests to subserve, but survey the situation from a moral standpoint, and I say to you that the country needs no better president than Chester A. Arthur.

Benjamin H. Bristow, ex-secretary of the treasury, followed. He sketched the discontent in republican ranks at the time of the accession of President Arthur and referred to the wonderful change in the election in New York last year as compared with the preceding year. Much of this change the speaker attributed to the judicious administration of President Arthur by refusing to use the power of his great office in the interest of faction. He has promoted harmony in party ranks. The president's course in the direction of civil service reform has been wise and sincere. Referring to the published letter addressed him by ex-Attorney General MacVeagh, the speaker said the gentleman did not seem to understand that this was simply a meeting of free and independent voters. "I decline his invitation to go into the slums of personal defamation." Bristow retired amid cheers and after a few other speeches the meeting adjourned. A committee of one hundred will be appointed to go to Chicago.

Western Union Finances.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The official statement of the Western Union Telegraph company for the year ending December 31st, gives gross revenue, $10,571,479; expenses, including leased lines, etc, $12,028,973; net profits, $8,642,513. From which were paid four quarterly dividends of 1¾ each, $5,599,125; interest on bonded debt, $426,247; sinking fund appropriation, $00,094; surplus for the year $577,046. Earnings for the first four months of the present year were greater than the corresponding months of last year.

The Markets.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Wool quiet, nominal.

BOSTON, May 20. Wool steady. Ohio and Pennsylvania extras 35 to 36; Michigan fleece, 32 to 34; Wisconsin, 35 to 32; other unchanged.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Money easy 1½ to 2; prime paper 4 to 5½; sterling exchange 4.83 to 4.84, demand 4.84½ to 4.85½; governments lower; railways lower for West Shore fives; state securities quiet. The share market was weak and lower throughout the day. Many unfavorable and unfounded reports were circulated. Rumors regarding Russell Sage and his privileges were used against the market in the afternoon. Prices opened ½ to 1½ per cent lower, the latter in Louisville & Nashville. The break brought in buyers and there was a rally of ½ to 2, Louisville & Nashville selling up to 32. Other active shares rose ½ to 1 per cent, but before midday Lackawanna showed considerable weakness and declined under large offerings to 106¼. Subsequently the stock rebounded to 108 and the general list improved. In the afternoon the market declined to the extent of ¾; Missouri Pacific 6¾. Near the close there was a better feeling and a rally of ¼ to 3/8, but in final dealings a part of this improvement was lost. The market closed comparatively firm. Compared with last night closing prices are 4¼ per cent lower for Missouri Pacific, 3¾ for Western Union, 2¼ for Lackawanna, 2¾ for St. Paul, 2 for Northwestern, 1¾ for Central Pacific, 1¼ for Louisville and Nashville, New York Central and Reading; ¼ to 1 per cent for the remainder of the list, except for Denver & Rio Grande, which is ½ per cent higher. Rufus Hatch says there is not a word of truth in the rumor that he had failed. Transactions $800,000.

There was only a small business in mining stocks and the market was rather weak. Belle Isle declined to 50, Consolidated Virginia to 16, and Navajo to 3.00. Union Consolidated sold 2.00, Sierra Nevada 1.50, Rappahannock 18, Oriental and Miller 10, Grand Prize 20, Horn Silver 6.00, Iron Silver 90 and Bodie seller ten days 3.30. A recent clean up after two days' run of the Dream Gulch at Cœur d'Alene netted $1,900.

WOOL CONVENTION.

An Address Issued to Sheep Men of the Country.

Present Depression Attributed to the Low Tariff.

A Move Towards Organizing into a Political Power.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The national mass meeting of wool growers of the United States resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. The committee appointed to prepare an address to the wool growers of the country submitted the following:

To the Wool Growers and Sheep Breeders of the United States:

GENTLEMEN—At the national convention of wool growers and sheep breeders of the United States, held at Chicago the 19th of May, 1884, and which was attended by delegates from twenty states, a committee was appointed to draw up an address to the wool growers of the country for the purpose of arousing them to a proper realization of the necessity that exists for immediate and energetic action if they would rescue the great industry in which they are engaged from its present depressed condition and impending dangers of a still more serious nature. The undersigned members of the committee firmly believe that the existing sad condition of the interest you represent has been brought about largely, if not altogether, by adverse congressional legislation, and that it will not again be prosperous until congress shall revise its action at its last session and restore the rates of duty to those which prevailed under the tariff of 1867, by which, for the first time in the industrial history of the country, equitable relations were established between duties on wool and those on woolen goods. It can be conclusively shown that the tariff act of that year gave to American producers of both wool and woolen goods a steady market and a secure expansion of production, and that through this expanded production it gave consumers cheaper wools and woolens than ever before known in America and brought prices for all goods of ordinary wear and many for fine and luxurious wear lower or as low as are known in Europe or elsewhere. The repeal of the tariff of '67 on wool and woolens was not asked for, as has been alleged, by the conservative business sentiment of the country or by a considerable number of the American people. It was brought about wholly through efforts of importers and others interested in securing in the United States a market for foreign wools, aided by a few parties who desire to make use of the foreign product as a whip with which to subdue the American market and menace American producers, upon whom they were necessarily compelled to rely for nine-tenths of the wool required in their business. These combined influences, unpatriotic and un-American, led to the passage of the unwise, abortive and suicidal tariff act of '83, to which we firmly believe may be attributed the present depressed condition of the wool industry. You have doubtless, gentlemen, heard much of late touching the soundness of the policy of putting raw materials of manufacture, including wool, on the free list. We trust you will resent such a proposition, when and wherever made, with the indignation it justly merits. Wool is the finished product of a million flock owners who have by years of intelligent and patient labor and the expenditure of large sums of money brought their product to its present high standard of excellence. To class it simply as raw material, as something that has been produced almost without cost or expenditure of time and labor is an injustice against which we trust you will enter an effective protest. Arguments used in the defence of the principles of protection apply at least as forcibly to wool as to any article on the tariff schedule. The growing of wool is, equally with the growing of food and forests and with the manufacture of iron and steel, the maintenance of the commercial marine and navy, of a national militia, a primary element of national defense in the way of financial security and independence in peace, a loss or neglect of which would derange our entire system and place the entire country in all its interests in a condition of industrial and colonial vassalage to foreign producers, equally fatal to the happiness of and unbecoming to the dignity and honor of a nation, whose annual increase in wealth is now three fold of any other nation and whose population now gives it the second rank among civilized empires and the first among free, self-governing and enlightened peoples. The appeal finally declares that wool growers have the right to ask congress for the restoration of a measure of protection and concludes in the following terms: "Finally, believing desperate diseases require heroic remedies, we especially urge you to sustain at the polls for legislative offices only such candidates as are in favor of adequately protecting and encouraging the great sheep industry by voting to restore the wool tariff of '67, or rates of duty at least as protective as those embodied in that act."

The report was unanimously adopted. The remainder of the session was taken up by discussing methods for united action in the pending national presidential canvass in making the power of the wool growing industry felt. Adjourned.

The convention reassembled at 4 o'clock and appointed committees of three republicans to attend the republican national convention and three democrats to attend the democratic national convention to urge the claim of wool growers for the restoration of the tariff of '67 on wool and present the ultimatum of flock-masters as set forth in its platform and address.

Struggle With a Maniac.

KANSAS CITY, May 20. At the city hospital this morning Durfees Weaver, a colored and insane patient, attacked two other patients with a knife, seriously injuring them, and attempted to burn the building by setting fire to his bedding. He then attacked Steward Winfrey, of the hospital, who to save his life drew a revolver and fired at Weaver, killing him. Winfrey was quite severely cut in the struggle.

A coroner's jury viewed the body of the dead negro and returned a verdict in night of justifiable homicide. Dr. Winfrey suffers from painful cuts about the head but they are not dangerous. John Hughes, a patient, received a terrible gash on the throat at the hand of the negro, but his condition is considered precarious. Last night Weaver occupied a cell in the insane ward with a paralytic patient named Sykes. This morning he secured the door of the cell and then set fire to the bedding, not when discovered was attempting to hold Sykes down on the pile of burning straw. The fire was extinguished and an effort made to induce Weaver to open the cell door. Dr. N. B. Winfrey, ward patients and nurses attempted to pacify him but the negro remained sullen. Dr. Winfrey was absent for a moment when John Hughes, an aged patient, approached. With a bound the negro sprang upon him and Winfrey rushed back to find Weaver had clutched Hughes and buried a knife in his throat. Winfrey ran to the office for his revolver and returned with it in his pocket. When he approached Weaver struck him on the head with an axe handle and [illegible] his face with the knife. Backing [illegible] the door shook off the maniac, and [illegible] the latter was crouching for another [illegible] the doctor fired. The negro fell shot [illegible] breast and died soon after.

Senator Logan will attend the Chicago convention. This is the best evidence that he does not expect to be nominated. But he will be on hand to drive a sharp bargain with the successful candidate.

Judge Williams kindly informs us that the liquor cases by mutual consent are continued until Friday morning until ten o'clock. We again suggest that there be a good congregation of citizen to witness the proceedings.

It is pretty well settled now that the rumors afloat in regard to an understanding between Blaine and Logan is untrue. Mr. Blaine's friends claim a good many of Logan votes on the second ballot and Logan is very angry.

The discussion about the probable effect of the panic on the chances of the presidential candidates for the nomination is futile. It will have no effect whatever. But if one party adopts a plank denouncing stock gambling and the other don't it will be found that the panic has some influence.

One of the worst signs of the times is the heavy decline in the price of government bonds. It can only mean that more banks and capitalists have been caught in the Wall street squeeze than the country dreams of. They must part with their bonds to get cash to meet their gambling obligations and the pressure to sell has already caused a reduction of more than 10 per cent in the price of registered 4 per cents.—[Denver News.

This may not indicate any bad condition of affairs. It is more than likely that government securities were sold because there was such a chance to invest in stocks and bonds. It is therefore a good sign. When there is a real panic money is hoarded and governments would be kept. But there is no want of confidence now, and purchases in stocks and bonds are freely made.

An interesting phase of English politics is the dispute between Lord Churchill and Lord Salisbury. One difference was in regard to the nomination of candidates for parliament. Lord Salisbury wishes the star chamber method where the leaders pick out the candidates. But Lord Churchill is trying to introduce the American caucus system so that all voters in a party shall participate in selecting the man for whom they shall vote. For the present Lord Churchill will not press this, but it will be a very prominent question if the new franchise bill becomes a law. With popular suffrage, a system of nominating candidates in which every voter may directly participate or indirectly through his chosen representatives is necessary. The present system in England will soon be overthrown by bolting and so enable a united minority to elect their candidates. The only way to prevent bolting is to put up good men and also give to every voter a chance to aid in naming him. These are the two great excuses for bolting. A man don't like to go to the polls and find himself compelled to choose between not voting and voting for a man he dislikes. If the majority of his party however select this candidate in a fair way he is likely to bow to the will of his party.

The beginning of Mrs. Helen Jackson's story "Ramona" appeared in the Christian Union for May 15. It is attracting a great deal of attention and promises to be the serial story of the year. The following brief announcement in the Christian Union gives some idea of the character of the story:

The Christian Union will begin the publication, on May 15th, of a serial story by Mrs. Helen Jackson ("H. H.") The fact that Mrs. Jackson has recently completed a story—the first long story to which she has ever attached her name—has already been widely noted and has aroused unusual interest. Mrs. Jackson has equal command of her resources and her audience: in "Ramona" she has surprised even those who know best her ability and skill as a writer of fiction. She has taken as the scene of her story that beautiful section of southern California with which she is so familiar; it furnishes a background whose rare natural beauty and variety she has used with thrilling skill, weaving into her narrative a thread of genuine poetry in continually recurring descriptions of scenery never obtrusive but always felicitous and alluring. The Mexican, American and Indian elements which are combined in the story furnish rich materials for character drawing, and an intensely dramatic motive, which is developed with increasing interest and power to the end. "Ramona" is an intensely dramatic and thoroughly modern story; but it differs from the great mass of modern fiction by the reality of the passions which it delineates, and the dramatic power of its movement and its situations. The editors of the Christian Union are confident that its readers will find in "Ramona" a work of fiction whose literary qualities and ethical purpose will command critical admiration and the widest popular interest.

We publish elsewhere a remarkable letter from Mr. Burnham in which he answers our query as to when perjury was committed. It is the first time that we have allowed any correspondent to introduce personalities into a letter published in the Gazette; and we do not intend to repeat it. But as Mr. Burnham felt that injustice had been done him, we have given him the largest liberty in giving his side. The gentleman attacked in the letter cannot be harmed by such abuse nor do we think that much sympathy in behalf of persecuted law breakers will be engendered by the use of mere epithets. What the letter has to say about anonymous contributions has justice in it. For this reason we have refused such communications and all attacks on alleged drug stores are made editorially. As to the question of perjury, there was none charged, but a query was made regarding it. Mr. Burnham answers it and his letter is entitled to all the weight that his personal statement can give. But we should like to have heard about some other things also and offer our columns again to Mr. Burnham or any other person interested to answer the following queries, only insisting that abusive language hereafter be abandoned:

Was it not a contemptible trick to arrest Whitmore for carrying concealed weapons, just to keep him out of court so that a case could not be tried?

Was it not a miserable quibble to insist that the service of a summons on a husband was incorrect when the summons was addressed to the wife?

Is it a respectable business for men who are breaking the law to engage in a conspiracy to blast a man's reputation for doing his duty as an official?

Why should the prosecution of law breakers be called malicious persecution?

Is it any argument in favor of stopping this prosecution because it is costing the city money to continue it?—It usually costs a community as well as an individual something to be respectable, and money expended for that purpose is not extravagance or waste.

A Druggist's Reply.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

Query—When was perjury committed? When the liquor cases were taken from Justice Fields' court to Justice Pixley's on the oath of defendants that justice could not be obtained in the former or when the same cases were taken from Justice Pixley's court to Justice Fields on the oath of the same parties that justice could not be obtained in the former?

The above is an extract from the editorial half column of the Gazette of May 16th, 1884, and through the courtesy of the gentleman in charge of the half column in question, we make reply to those damaging insinuations therein contained. The article in question is one-fifth of the matter contained in said half column, but the tremendous mental strain that is apparent in the garbled query will plead an excuse for the shortcoming of the matter that was more pertinent to the public weal.

The facts in the case, all of which were open for the editor's information, had he shown the least spirit of justice and honesty in the premises, are as follows:

The first suit in question and which is pertinent to the query was brought before Justice Fields, and change of venue asked for and granted for the reasons that appear upon the records, the principal reason therein appearing being that the defendant deemed the court prejudiced against his interest and that substantial justice could not be had.

The change of venue bringing the case in question before Justice Pixley the cause was set for a hearing, and upon the defendant appearing, the case was dismissed and stricken from the docket at the request of the prosecution. So ends the first chapter of the insinuation of perjury, and here we would pause to ask an honorable, justice-loving public, if any perjury has so far been proven? And if you think so or not, and wish to make reply as to your own honest convictions, do not do it under the nom de plume of either "Justice," or "One who knows the town by gas light," but champion your words by appending your name. An anonymous writer has too much the odor of a slimy serpent, and an honorable journal, which is conducted by those who understand the ethics of journalism, would not give space to the scurrilous, garbled hog-wallow that has lately appeared over the nom de plumes in the public press of this city.

But, asking pardon for the digression, we will continue. After the suit already spoken of had been dismissed another was brought to enable the prosecutors to play at law (God the save mark) at the taxpayers' expense. This case was brought and defendant cited to appear before Justice Pixley. The defendant appeared as before. (Mark you, the defendant always appears, even to the detriment of his business affairs, being amenable to the law if he does not come at the beck and call of the few bankrupt cranks who, not content with bankrupting themselves and families, are using every nerve of their fanatical bodies to bankrupt the city by piling cost after cost upon it, stagnating its industries and driving prosperity from its doors.) As we said, the defendant again appeared when a continuance this time was asked for. By whom; the defendant? No, the prosecution, or persecution as you please, the grounds—being that the sneak and perjurer yclept Whitmore, who they said was their principal witness, had been arrested for breaking the law by carrying concealed and deadly weapons contrary to the statute made and provided therefor. The attorney for the defense urged the prosecution of the cause, but wished, if a continuance had to be granted, that it be until the following day; that if either on the attorneys should be called into a higher (i. e., the county) court, a further continuance be mutually agreed upon.

The next day the defendant again appeared but his attorney, together with one of the legal luminaries of the prosecution, was absent in attendance upon the county court. The defendant, not being represented by counsel, asked the judge to grant the mutual agreement of continuance as understood by the defendant, but by the persistent efforts of Attorney Bentley and his factotum Jones, the justice denied the continuance and ordered the cause to be tried, whereupon the defendant, being unrepresented by counsel and deeming from the ruling of the justice that his cause was prejudiced, asked for that which the law grants to every citizen—the right to change of venue.

And now with all honesty and candor we would respectfully ask, "where is the perjury?"

We have no grievance against Justice Pixley in his ruling, but we believe he erred in his ruling and such error, if an error, was prejudicial to our cause. Does this look like perjury? If so, in what sense? Because we will not idly be mulcted and become a puppet, the strings of which are to be pulled by a few fanatical and irresponsible cranks, scabs upon the body politic, and ulcers upon the public purse, is it for this that an alleged (thank you for the word) newspaper must sling the inuendo of perjury, but it is on a par with everything else in connection with the so called liquor cases—nothing too low, nothing too mean, nothing too groveling and nothing too contemptible. And at last and finally with all due respect, we subscribe ourself,

THOMAS BURNHAM.

PERSONAL.

Governor Robinson, of Massachusetts, has declined to become a trustee of Harvard college.

Mr. Edward Eggleston's daughter Allegra is claimed to be the best woman wood-carver in the country.

George W. Cable cleared $5,000 by his readings last winter, and will return to the platform next fall. He will spend the summer with his family in New England.

Jeff Davis denies the Pollard statement that he thought General McClellan could have entered Richmond, but he pushed on across the Chickahominy when in front of the place. He says General Lee felt confident that he could hold the place against McClellan.

Louis Schaefer, of Canton, Ohio, who has offered a home to Mrs. McKinlay, the granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson, to whom congress recently declined to grant a pension, says, "I shall be proud to give her a home. She shall have the best my means will allow. That is the kind of a democrat I am."

"Trubiah Smith," says the Hartford Post, "either in the senate or the house, surrounded as she was by the hosts who bowed the knee to Baal, was already true to his conviction, disdaining to compromise, and ready always with his vote, no matter what it cost. If is for this he will be remembered."

The Rev. P. C. Mozoomdar meets with bitter opposition in his aspiration to become the successor of the late Keshub Chunder Sen as leader of the Brahmo Somaj, of India. A strong faction holds that the deceased Hahn is still perceptibly present in spirit, and will always remain so, and hence they refuse to admit the possibility of there being a "successor" to him. Mr. Mozoomdar unequivocally rejects this notion, and is supported in his position by an equally strong faction.

The late Professor Gross, of Philadelphia, was one of the earliest American users of chloroform as an anæsthetic, and he adhered to it all his life, preferring it to ether, which in general practice has largely superseded it. He made use of chloroform in more than 5,000 important operations without a single accident resulting therefrom—a fact speaking much for his care and skill.

Americans in China.

An English Wesleyan missionary, writing from Canton to the China Mail at Hong Hong, says:

The idemnity for damage done to the American Presbyterian chapel at Shek Lung during the riot that took place a few months ago has been paid. Three hundred and seventy dollars was claimed and $370 was paid. A claim by the same mission for damage done to a preaching room at Clik Aom has also been paid in full. The Ng Chau affair has been referred to Peking, and is there receiving attention. The American consul deserves all praise for the manner in which he has sustained the privileges and rights of his countrymen. Notwithstanding the boasted prestige of England, an Englishman cannot get his affairs attended to with the same dispatch or completeness. Three or four years ago an English missionary was mobbed through no fault of his, and, instead of obtaining any redress, he was censured. Some time ago a medical missionary was shot at and little or nothing was done. A party were attacked at Sai Tsui, and the whole affair has been pigeon-holed since the Chinese authorities stated they would "inquire into the matter," and they are inquiring yet. In the case of a dispute about a piece of ground not a word has been heard since the matter was referred to the authorities. The success with which the Chinese can hamboozle an intelligent and clever Englishman is truly marvelous. An acknowledgment of the receipt of the dispatch and a "we will inquire into the matter," ends the whole affair. For attention to matters concerning the majority give me the English government, but for matters concerning the individual let me have the American. It may be an open question which is the higher form, but seeing society and states are made up of individuals, it certainly appears that the American government begins at the right end.

It is rumored that the German, French and American claims on Shamsen will be paid, but the English claims are to be submitted to an English court for settlement.

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned from Our Exchanges.

THE MINING REPORTER.

Leadville Herald

The pleasantest and easiest calling that a man can well stumble into in a western country is that of a mine reporter for a newspaper. Some people with a proclivity for scribbling may prefer the drama, arts, railroad or other commercial or scientific subjects, but any man with a level head will at once select the more gentle and lucrative specialty of mining. It requires very little thought or work, and anyone who can distinguish a piece of black navy plug tobacco from a fragment of forest rock is thoroughly qualified for the position. One not familiar with the business may think that a mining reporter is often placed in embarrassing positions; takes his life in his hands almost daily, and that he is poorly paid for his services. This, however, is all a mistake. There are no practical jokers in the west, and the writer on mining matters is never called upon in the presence of a crowd, at the risk of losing a round of drinks, to decide whether a piece of ore is the richest in zinc or lead, or whether a small dirty piece of asafœtida belongs to the white, pyritiferous or eruptive classes of porphyry. No, the average miner has too much respect for a writer on mining matters to indulge in any such pranks. So far as the risk of life and limbs is concerned, the subject is too ridiculous to be considered. Of course you often climb down a rickety ladder into the dark abyss of a two hundred foot shaft, without showing the slightest fear—when, if that same ladder was tacked to the side of a house only thirty feet in height, you would not ascend it. For all the mines in Colorado, The Idea that the services of mining reporters are poorly paid for, is another fallacy. There is scarcely a day but new mining schemes are hatched, and it is seldom that an enterprising reporter cannot get a good block of the stock, the certificate of which ought at least be worth as much as gift chromos.

There are many other advantages in favor of mine reporting as compared with other reportorial work, notable among which are inducements for a man to become truthful and honest. "You won't compromise—the paper of implicate yourself by assisting me," said a well-known mine manager to the author of this article once, "and I will give you one thousand dollars whenever you say the word." The word was never pronounced, and the $1,000 bill failed to change ownership.

Once in a while a mining reporter will receive a call on stocks or mining shares that will make for him a little money, not more than enough however, to enable him to keep up his end of the string when associating with men whose yearly salaries frequently amount to as many thousands as his does hundreds. When an option or gift to a reporter does turn out well the party who made the present is generally as greatly surprised as the fortunate reporter, and the donor generally winds up by kicking himself all over town, and getting on a spree with the reporter, who foots the bill, and ends the transaction with a balance sheet, containing the credit of the night's fun, offset by a hot jaghe.

All mining writers are, however, not of this character. Instead of knocking around with a jovial prospector or miner, and having one continued round of pleasure—climbing hills and crawling down lagging into twenty to one hundred foot prospect shafts—they will sit in their office and write learned theses on mining. New York, Chicago and Denver are particularly good points for the development of this character of mining journalism, particularly the Lake Side city. It is this character of mining writers who sustain the profession and lend respectability to the great number who tramp over the hills, gather up notes of actual occurrence and genuine discoveries of merit.

THE SALIDA MINING DISTRICT.

From Saturday's Mail.

With our gold, silver, copper and iron mines north and west, coal and lime south and east of us, we are so situated as to get the benefit of them all.

It is hard to get much reliable mining news on account of the prospectors securing their property before it is published to the world. As soon as the news comes out of a new strike, a large number of men invariably rush to the scene of the new strike and make nearly the whole country.

Colonel Hives has an assay made on some ore from his mine, and it gives returns of 45 per cent in copper, at the depth of only ten feet. He will send some more to-morrow and have it thoroughly tested, and if it proves as good as it appears, he will put on three shafts of men and work it as rapidly as possible.

Another strike, this time it is coal, below town about seven miles. McKelvey and Gould have been working down there for the last two years thinking they would strike something. For the last two or three months they have been running a drift, and yesterday struck a fine vein of coal from four to eight feet wide. It looks like anthracite and burns up clean, leaving white colored ashes.

Some of these fine mornings this town is liable to wake up and find parties digging for gold right in our midst. The Martha lode, across the railroad track, was discovered about a year ago by Mr. McVicmon, and he has since been working it at times, and now, after driving a tunnel about ten feet, he has started to sink a shaft. He is now down about twelve feet, and has been finding some gold, nothing very high as yet, but looks encouraging, and the probabilities are that it will develop into a good mine.

Considerable excitement was created this morning by a strike in the Great Eastern mine of free gold, on yesterday afternoon. The specimens brought to town are very rich and will assay very high. We are informed by Mr. Tretcher, one of the proprietors of the mine, that the entire vein, two feet wide, appears impregnated with fine gold, and the samples shown us are fair specimens of the entire vein. They have been working the mine for the copper which has been carrying considerable gold and silver, but last evening they got below the copper and the vein has turned free gold bearing rock. An assay made for the Mail on the ore gave a return of $101.29 of free gold.

The Uncompahgre River, Colorado.

Ernest Ingersoll, in the Manhattan for June.

The Uncompahgre river escapes at last from the mountains through a picturesque gap in the rim of the Ouray basin, and pursues its way with little further hindrance to the lowlands northward and to its union with the Gunnison at Delta. The gap is only two or three hundred yards wide, and is filled with a dense growth of trees, under which the stage-road is hidden. Through these groves the river has cut a broad swath, paved with the white pebbles that represent its spring floods, in the midst of which at this shrunken season it trickles in devious slenderness. Softly red cliffs stand on each side erect and imposing. In many places the whole facade leans forward, of ledges reach out into the sunlight and make us tremble lest they may fall with their weight of forest growth while we are passing underneath. The colors of these cliffs, always pleasing—in blending tones of gray, brown and red, are further varied by daplings of cushiony moss, or—lichen-growths, due by the bushes, and blossoms that get precarious foothold in a few crannies. Their irregularities break into new forms of picturesqueness as we roll past, explaining our eyes. High up the face of one of these mighty cliffs we can discern that a black spot—caught sight of only by chance—is a mine entry, and get a glimpse of the discolored dump that has been cast down. A dot-like figure comes to the mouth of the tunnel, and a moment afterward a puff of dust far below shows that he has hurled down some rock, probably from a wheelbarrow. We wonder how he ever gets to and from his mine.

Three or four miles farther the thick growth of trees in the bottom and on the ledges thins out, while the valley grows wider, and ranches begin to appear. Pleasant homes, surrounded by trees, stand in the midst of wide fields of grain and low-lying meadows of natural hay. The cliffs still rise hundreds of feet high, and are redder even than those above—as brightly vermilioned as the crest of the treasure-mountains which I have compared to a cardinal's hat. Those on the eastern side (we are heading squarely northward) are sparsely wooded with spruces and cedars rooted with sturdy grip on the rocky shelves, every tree leaning outward, craving the light. The rocks on the right are almost barren even of herbage. As the cañon opens into the Uncompahgre Park, the great walls become less precipitated on both sides of the valley, and clothe themselves in a complete and beautifully green mantle of dense small bushes, which conforms to their shape and suggests their strata.

Signs of Spring in New England.

Holyoke Transcript.

The sheep will soon begin to bleat, the carpet beater soon will beat, while Tuscan peddlers walk the street with statuettes of Paul and Pete. While mildest airs severely woo the daffodil and pansy blue, upon the ash-heap comes to view the hoopskirt and the overshoe. The rose will soon begin to bud, the boy will build the cake of mud, humanity will take a flood of medicine to clear the blood. The circus bill will deck the rock, the fisherman will deck the dock, a dozen stores in every block will sport the banner-branded "Bock." And just as May begins to smile and puts on lots of summer style, and round the town begins to pile the picnic camper full of guile, the grass will twinkle in the lane, the organ grinder "Nancy Jane" will grind, and, hopeful, send for gain his pensive monkey on a chain. When summer suits are blowing gay on airy frames along our way, and bluebirds blithely roundelay, 'twill be about the first of May.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF

NEW BOOKS

TO BE

Published During the Spring of 1884.

The prices named below are subject to revision on publication.

OSGOOD'S COMPLETE POCKET-GUIDE TO EUROPE. Revised and enlarged edition of 1884. With new and complete alphabetical dictionary of European summer resorts and health resorts, with distances and fares from Paris. 1 vol. 32mo. With six maps. Price $1.50.

AT DAYBREAK. A novel. 16mo. Price, $1.25.

A graceful, idyllic well-written story of two Danish-American families, of a new type. The plot is good, with many fine situations, the interest is sustained to the end, and the story as a whole has both power and freshness.

OVER THE BORDER. By Miss E. B. Chase. 1 vol. 12mo. Illustrated with Heliotype Engravings from original drawings. Price, $1.25.

A charming description of recent summer travel in Nova Scotia, with piquant sketches of life and manners in Acadia, the land of Evangeline, and descriptions of the grand scenery and singular people about the Basin of Minas.

A MIDSUMMER MADNESS. By Mrs. Ellen Kirk. 1 vol. 16mo. Price, $1.25.

A capital novel, by one of the foremost American story writers, full of bright epigram, and abounding in interesting situations.

THREE VILLAGES. By Wm. D. Howells. 1 vol. 16mo. Little Classic size. Price, $1.25.

In this pleasant record of close and kindly observation, Mr. Howells gives descriptions and reminiscences of three peculiarly interesting American communities and their people, making rare and delightful pen sketches, as dainty and delicate as his "Venetian Days" and "Italian Journeys."

SONG AND STORY. By Edgar Fawcett. 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

The chief poem in "Song and Story" is entitled "Alan Eliot," and narrates in blank verse the history of a secret fratricidal crime, followed by its revelation while the murderer is in a state of somnambulism. "Alan Eliot" is in many respects Mr. Fawcett's strongest and most dramatic poem. Other poems in the volume are "The Republic," (an ode read at Harvard college by its author in 1879 before the Phi Beta Kappa Society, "The Rivers," (a long lyrical piece read in the previous year before the Alpha Delta Phi Society of Yale at Chickering hall), and various other poems printed at different times in the magazines and journals. It is now six years since Mr. Fawcett published his last book of poems, "Fantasy and Passion."

AN AVERAGE MAN. By Robert Grant, author of "Confessions of a Frivolous Girl," "The Lambs," etc. 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

"A sparkling bright thing," it is pronounced by a well-known critic. A success is predicted for this vivid realistic story, not inferior to that which welcomed "The Confessions of a Frivolous Girl."

MINGO, AND OTHER SKETCHES IN BLACK AND WHITE. By Joel Chandler Harris. 1 vol. 16mo. Price, $1.25.

Another series of southern stories and sketches by the author of "Nights with Uncle Remus," whose admirable pen depicts of negro life and thought, legends and superstitions, have won profound admiration in America and Europe.

EUSTIS. A novel. By Robert Apthorp Bolt. 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

A southern love story and an admirable one, giving striking hints of the state of feeling lingering yet in the south, with a brilliancy of local coloring, and a consistency of plot, that furnish material enough and well worked out to constitute "Eustis" a most original and interesting novel.

HENRY IRVING'S IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA. Narrated in a series of sketches, chronicles, and conversations. By Joseph Hatton. 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

TINKLING CYMBALS. By Edgar Fawcett, author of "A Gentleman of Leisure," etc. 1 vol. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

A brilliant novel of New York in the nineteenth century, by one of its closest and most observant students, which, during its serial publication, has attracted very general attention and met with great commendation for its vigor, intensity and spirit.

THE BATTLE OF STONE'S RIVER. Near Murfreesboro, Tenn., December 30, 1862, to January 3, 1863. By Alexander F. Stevenson. 1 vol. 8vo. With maps and plans. Price, $3.00.

A minute and detailed account of one of the most sanguinary and prolonged battles of the civil war, which has hitherto been too little understood, and heroic deeds of the two armies that confronted each other in Tennessee are here set forth with picturesque martial vigor.

The recent rains have made the foot hills green and shown that there is some verdure even in this so called barren country.

Mrs. J. J. Corum left for Liberty, Missouri, yesterday to attend the funeral of her sister, who died recently at Houston, Texas.

The latest feature is a phantom serenade. It was introduced for the first time at a well-known home in this city on Monday night.

"A Bunch of Keys" company left for Pueblo yesterday morning where they were expected to appear last night, and then go over the Colorado circuit.

The cases of The City vs. V. P. Massey and Mrs. Charles Stockbridge will come up for trial, the former on Friday afternoon and the latter Saturday morning.

The Polled Angus bull, spoken of in the GAZETTE a day or two ago, was exhibited on the streets yesterday afternoon and was much admired by the stockmen.

Last night's Salt Lake train, from the west, was five hours late. Twenty passengers were deposited at Colorado Springs, all of whom registered at The Antlers.

The local performance to be given at the opera house on Friday night by "The Troubadours," a local organization headed by Burt Haverly, should draw a crowded house. We will venture to assert that it will discount "A Bunch of Keys."

To-morrow night the Nashville students will appear in the First M. E. church for the first time in Colorado Springs. The entertainment given is said to be very novel and worthy of patronage. Reserved seats are now on sale at Howbert Bros.' book store.

Mr. A. Sagendorf expects to leave for Denver to-day, where he will accept a position in the United States internal revenue office with J. S. Wolfe. Mr. Sagendorf will leave his family here for a while, as in his opinion it is the best place for a family home in America.

Captain Burnham yesterday stated to a GAZETTE reporter that the rumor that had gained circulation on the streets to the effect that he had been notified to quit the premises he occupied was false. He says it is the oldest drug store in the city and always will be.

James Wergert returned to Colorado Springs yesterday after an absence of a month or more at his home in Pennsylvania. He can now be found at his old place behind the counter, at F. E. Dow's clothing store, where he would be pleased to see all his old friends.

County court convened yesterday morning. Several civil cases were disposed of and it was expected that some of the liquor cases on the docket would come up for trial or be dismissed. As there was nothing brought up Judge Colburn adjourned the court until next term.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the trial of the People vs. Pryor was resumed in Justice Pixley's court. The doors were closed to curious listeners and newspaper reporters. From the number of witnesses that have been summoned in the case it must be rather a complicated one.

W. P. Beech of Denver will succeed Mr. Brower as the manager of the telephone system of the city. Many defects can be remedied and the subscribers who have used and paid for the use of instruments from the origin of the circuit can look and hope for more careful attention.

A hearing in the cases of the People vs. Whitmore charged with carrying concealed weapons will be given at Colorado City to-day before Justices Roberts and Ingraham. It will be maintained that Whitmore, a duly-elected justice of the peace of El Paso county, is given that privilege by law.

The liquor case of the City vs. E. P. Burnham came up for trial in Justice Fields' court yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Both prosecution and defense were ready for trial, but as Justice Fields was engaged as attorney in the Pryor rape case, a continuance was, by the consent of the attorneys, agreed upon until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Professor J. H. Kerr, who has been east in the interest of the Pike's Peak railway, returned to his home in this city yesterday noon on the Thunderbolt. He, in conversation with a reporter of the GAZETTE, said that the enterprise had been received with universal favor at the east and that opportunities for placing the bonds at a large discount were numerous but the professor has been and still is of the impression that the bonds can be placed at par. But for the recent panic in New York the bonds could have been placed at a satisfactory figure, but with the existing unsettled condition of the market some little delay may be experienced. Enough encouragement has been given Prof. Kerr to assure him that money sufficient can be obtained to prosecute the work and complete the line.
